BEAUTIFUL HANDS.

Such beautiful, beautiful hands.
They're neither white nor small,
And they're not perfectly thin.
But they're fair at all!

I've looked at hands whose form and hue
A sculptor's dream might be,
Yet these are hands which I
Most beautify to me.

Such beautiful, beautiful hands.
Though heart were wavy and sad,
These patient hands kept toiling on,
Till the day when I said, "I almost weep,
As looking back,
To childhood's distant day."

With love and care, I'll bring you now,
When mine were at their play.

Such beautiful, beautiful hands.
They're growing fewer now,
For time and pain have left their mark
On hand and heart, and brow.

And still I hold them close,
And the old, old, day to me.

Whom'naught has faded out of sight,
But O, beyond compare, hands,

Whom'naught is bright and fair!

I know full these dear old hands
Will pass my vision never.

What joy to live through endless years
Pi' waver golden sand.

And where the old grow young again—
I'll clasp my mother's hands.

A BIRD'S SONG IN THE NIGHT.

BY JULIA GARNET.

I wake up in the night, and hear
The soft, soft music of a bird—

A drooping, gurgling little note,
That seems to come from his throat.

As if he felt it strange, that in
All of us the world should be,

And green, green, green, green,

Again the wide, low and clear,
I learned it with strain my listening ear;

It made no echo in the air
Only stirred the silence there;

As if he hid it in his breast;

And only night and I had heard
The sweet song of the dreaming bird.

The Charleston Cotton Market.

OFFICE OF THE CHARLESTON DAILY NEWS,
Charleston, June 11, 1867.

The market was under the influence of receding prices at Liverpool, and the rates had been raised over a half cent per lb. Since 35c. bales, viz.: at 21, 10 at 21½, 7 at 22, 1st 22½, 2nd 23½, 3rd 24½, and 70 at 25 cents. We quote Middling at 24½@25.

Augusta Market.

AUGUSTA, June 10.—Cotton.—There was some little trade this morning, but in the afternoon Liverpool advised of a further fall in prices. It is impossible for us to give quotations, but refer to sales, which amounted to 156 bales, as follows: 1 at 21, 17 at 22, 1st 22½, 2nd 23½, 3rd 24½, 4th 25½, 5th 26½, 6th 27½, 7th 28½, 8th 29½, 9th
